PRESS RELEASE

Prisma is a 21st Century language made by Italian artisans in different shades and colors. It is part of the collectible design language Prisma that has been developed by the Edizione Limitata's art research team in Milan. The mirror was born from overlapping ribbed glass slabs on different mirrors, the shades and distortion game were too interesting to not develop a language. Mirroring into Prisma is something that you just need to experience. This language creates alternating, playful reflections of the surroundings where the basic shapes create different graphic effects.
